NAME	ORIGIN	SIGNIFICANCE
Quist Place	Adrian Karl Quist (1913-1991)	Tennis player noted as a doubles player. Born in Adelaide. He won the Australian junior doubles in 1930 and was undefeated in the Australian doubles championship from 1936 to 1950, mainly with partner John Bromwich. This combination is rated by many as the greatest doubles partnership in tennis history. His other well-known double partner was Jack Crawford, with whom he won the Wimbledon and French doubles titles in 1935. He returned to win the Wimbledon doubles again, this time with Bromwich, in 1950. Though never winning a Wimbledon singles final, he was Australian singles champion in 1936, 1940 and 1948 and made 28 Davis Cup appearances for Australia. He also pioneered the change from long trousers to shorts for male tennis players in Australia.

VIOLETS PARK	Violet Bulger (1900-1993)	Ngunnawal Elder. She was one of the Ngunnawal people's most respected elders. She was born in 1900 at the Brungle Mission. Her father was Fred Freeman, the well known "Black Tracker". She was one of the first native Australian children taken from their parents by Catholic Missionaries and placed in a children's home, where she trained as a domestic servant. She spent most of her working life in domestic services. After her marriage to Vincent Bulger, she gave birth to 10 children and raised many of her grandchildren after their parent's passed away. The family was moved to Hollywood, the aboriginal mission in Yass, in the 1930's and she was asked to work as the caretaker. She represented her community for several decades.
